Abstract of the Disclosure

An ultra-high-speed radiographic imaging assembly is useful for pediatric radiography to provide images with improved contrast and reduced fog.

The film includes at least silver halide emulsion layers on each side of a film support that comprise tabular high silver bromide grains. The imaging assembly includes one or more fluorescent intensifying screens comprising a highly reflective microvoided support.